ARTIST & INFO

Hometown: Sacramento, CA

Deftones have never been your average hard rock band. As kids, the Sacramento band cut its teeth on Anthrax and The Smiths, Pantera and The Cure, skateboarding and "The Smurfs." As a band out of high school, Deftones mixed trip hop with thrash, melodic vocals with crushing reverb, and yes, pretty with ugly. As chart-toppers and headliners, they've crossed over genres, defied categorization and confused the hell out of your iPod ("Heavy Metal?" "Hard Rock?" "Alternative?")

ARTIST & INFO

Hometown: San Pedro, CA Band Members: Yuko Araki (drums) Hirotaka "shimmy" Shimizu (guitar), Richard Meltzer (voice), Mike Watt (bass)

The story of Spielgusher begins at what would be near the end of The Minutemen. Me and D. Boon were huge Richard Meltzer students. We knew of him from his helping to create rock-write. In most places where we read him, it was the only thing we found interesting. It was also gut busting and for corn dogs like us, that meant brain busting - or was it the other way around?

"Scientist Rock" is what he called The Minutemen in Creem magazine for a review of the Bean-Spill E.P. He sent a letter to us about being sorry for missing a gig cuz of a wedding so we put it on the back of our Buzz Or Howl Under The Influence Of Heat E.P. He was a true hero of The Minutemen. You can imagine how blown away we were when Richard suggested a collaboration.

Well, we never got to collaborate w/Richard. A sickness 'pert-near killed me in 2000, this illness rattled me hard. It was profound on me. The second opera came out of it. Lots of stuff happened in the next couple of years and one of them was to ask Richard to record spoken word versions of his poems and such so I could somehow be a part of making music for them. I told him I wanted to call it Spielgusher - I thought of the name by grasping at something I could best describe how I was feeling, I wanted to get lit by his spiels, I wanted to live! By this time he was no longer in So Cal but had moved to Portland up in Oregon. During 2004 he had recorded what was to be fortyeight pieces, just his voice though at one point he did do a solo on a turtle whistle. Man, when he sent me the CD, what a trip - I listened all them spiels tons of times. It was really a trip to find that some of those ten given to us minutemen were a part of these, I remembered the words from those printed pages like there were burned in my head and now hearing Richard's voice read them. Of course there was a buttload more too but they were all totally him and I loved it big time. Somehow I had to put music w/this that I was just as emotionally connected to though I didn't want it to be too watt-preconceived.

April of 2007 is when I first met Mr Shimmy and Ms Yuko- Señor Dorian, an ex-pat in Japan had turned me onto mi-gu music and it was profound on me. I was asked by them to record on some songs of theirs while I was w/the Stooges for the Fuji Rock Fest... wow, they were righteous people and musicians! After that, they asked to record w/me on something of mine - I immediately thought of Richard's spiels, I don't know exactly why but I did and it was an honest feeling. The big diff this thirid though was I would jump in w/them at the same time. they had me come to tokyo and for three days in may of 2008, we came up w/sixtyfive pieces of music.

The rundown for each piece of music went like this: someone would come up w/a motif and then us three would jam around this for a little bit. Since there were so many spiels of Richard's and many were very short, we made our musical parts likewise. Then we would record what we had worked out and move on to the next. We would rotate who would start us off and sometimes Ms yuko would move to xylophone or congas. I then chose what spiels of Richard's went w/what music from us three and where in each piece his voice would be. I decided fourteen music pieces would be instrumentals so we could get as much of the three days represented as possible. I decided three poems would stand on their own, to demarcate the whole work.

You can't know how happy it made me when I sent it to Richard and he said he really dug it, "CRIMONY!"- Mike Watt

ALBUM FACTS

Genre: Rock

Description:

The group's final album--1971's L.A. Woman, with the signature hits "L.A. Woman," "Love Her Madly" and "Riders On The Storm"--is being celebrated with a special two-CD release from Rhino. The L.A. Woman 40th Anniversary Edition features a never-before-heard song, "She Smells So Nice," which captures the band--organist Ray Manzarek, guitarist Robby Krieger, drummer John Densmore and late singer Jim Morrison--joyfully barreling through a full-throttle original before segueing into the blues standard "Rock Me." As the song closes, Morrison can be heard chanting, "Mr. Mojo Risin"--an anagram of his name that was made famous during the bridge of "L.A. Woman." The track was recently discovered by producer Bruce Botnick while reviewing the L.A. Woman session tapes.

In addition to "She Smells So Nice," the second disc of the L.A. Woman reissue includes eight never-before-heard versions of songs from the album. Alternate takes of "L.A. Woman," "Love Her Madly" and "Riders On The Storm" offer a fresh view on this landmark album, which was the group's sixth straight Top 10.

The studio chatter between the songs is a revelation, transporting listeners to The Doors Workshop: the West Hollywood rehearsal space where they recorded the album with Botnick. One segment in particular captures a fascinating moment of inspiration when Morrison suggests they add the now-iconic thunderstorm sound effects to the beginning of "Riders On The Storm."

ARTIST & INFO

Hometown: Los Angeles, CA Band Members: Sonny Moore

"I've been deep into electronic music my entire life. The first records I ever owned were 'Fat of Land' by the Prodigy and 'Come To Daddy' by Aphex Twin," raves Sonny Moore, better known as emerging electronic visionary SKRILLEX. "Marilyn Manson and Nine Inch Nails were also early influences. I've been dabbling in making electronic tracks on programs like Fruity Loops since I was 14 years old."

SKRILLEX is part of a new generation of artists that refuse to be restricted by preconceived notions or outside expectations. "Genre has never been important to me," he insists. "I've never thought about music that way."

"I've listened to so much music for so long, it's more about instinct than influence," Moore explains about his sonic inspirations. "Coming up, I was into a lot of artists on the Warp record label like Autechre, Squarepusher, and Aphex Twin, so SKRILLEX tracks are inclined to have more changes than most dance tracks normally have. I can draw influences from almost anything. I just like to mess around and create cool new sounds and noises. I just go where the music takes me."

SKRILLEX stands not only at the vanguard of electronic dance music, but the perpetually evolving new music industry as a whole.

"For me, it's important to believe in and love the music you're making. I gave away my first EP on my manager's website, just so people could hear the music," he enthuses. "It was downloaded by the thousands in just a couple of months, and it hasn't let up since. That's all the inspiration I need to keep making music."

"SKRILLEX can be anything I want it to be," he continues hopefully. "There are so many different avenues for music now. Video games, movie scores - the possibilities are endless, and I'm excited to be a part of it."
