ALBUM FACTS

Genre: Rap/Hip Hop Radio Formats: Rhythmic, Urban Focus Markets: New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia, SF - Oakland - San Jose, Boston, Dallas, Ft. Worth, Detroit, Washington, D.C., Houston, Cleveland, Atlanta, Minneapolis - St. Paul, Tampa - St. Petersburg, Seattle - Tacoma, Miami, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Denver, Phoenix, AZ

Description: Known primarily for his heavy smokers anthem, "Cloud 9," and the frenetic energy of his song "Haterz Everywhere," B.o.B scored a record deal with Atlantic Records while he was still in high school. Now, the teen-aged rap phenomenon is ready to bring his genrebending style nationwide with his highly anticipated debut, B.o.B Presents: The Adventures of Bobby Ray on Rebel Rock/Grand Hustle/Atlantic Records.

B.o.B Presents: The Adventures of Bobby Ray, is a fascinating journey into the Atlanta artist's far-reaching imagination. On the track "Not Alone," a song B.o.B describes as an alternative rock chant, he touches on his pain as a child who was unable to fit in with his own peers. The Tombz-produced cut, "Camera," explores the story of a young woman who chooses life as a stripper over a college education.

B.o.B continues to rap to the ladies on "Cyber Heaven," where he claims his lovin' will take them out of this world, while "Haterz Everywhere" featuring Rich Boy, a song that has flooded the South since its release in early 2007, proves his stronghold over the competition. B.o.B's most honest reflection of his artistic intent comes on "Trippin'," where he raps about using his craft as a therapeutic means of solving his feelings of eccentricity. "I feel like I have a really different perspective," he says. "When I grew up it was really hard for me to figure out why I felt that way, like I really felt like I was from another planet. Now, it's the opposite. All of that time I spent developing my talent and really analyzing myself, now I feel like I can express all of that and give all of my energy and love to the world."

After producing the majority of his album by himself and learning to play multiple musical instruments - including the piano, trumpet and French horn - B.o.B is destined to spread his message of creativity and empowerment through his music. "I just want to show people that there are endless possibilities of what you can do," he says. "You don't just have to be a rapper, you don't just have to be a trapper; you can be anything you want to be and whatever you do, just love it and it will show."

ARTIST & INFO

Hometown: Atlanta, GA

Sometimes it pays to be different. Hailing from Atlanta, Georgia, a city known for its outcasts, B.o.B aka Bobby Ray is truly out of the ordinary. At just 21 years old, the rapper - born Bobby Ray Simmons - has become a breath of fresh air in Atlanta's snap and trap-obsessed scene.

B.o.B made the decision very early in his young life to pursue a career in hip-hop. He started rapping at the age of 13 after studying classic albums from DMX and Eminem. With the encouragement of his older brother, B.o.B started feverishly writing down anything and everything. "At the time, Joe Budden was poppin' and my brother told me when Joe was 15 he used to fill up notebooks with rhymes," says B.o.B "That lit off a light bulb for me and I was like damn, I need to do more than that. Then from seventh grade up to tenth grade, I just started filling up notebooks with lyrics. Then it got to the point where I was just writing them in my head."

While still in junior high school, B.o.B formed a group with his cousin Swag, called The Klinik. The two young MCs were able to buy a simple studio set-up that included the beat-making program Fruity Loops. They quickly started crafting their own songs and performing at open mics around Atlanta. Their manager, B Rich, introduced them to a local ATL rapper named Playboy Tre of the Georgia Durt camp, and he taught the young'ns how to use his professional studio.

The Klinik continued to collaborate until their senior year of high school in 2006, when B.o.B's cousin decided to leave home in order to attend college. Faced with a tough decision, B.o.B chose to continue rapping, this time as a solo artist. "I called my manager and was like, 'I think I'm just going to start working at the mall for a little while and get some money so I can really start pursuing music like I want to,'" he remembers. "Him and Playboy Tre came by my house and were like, 'Look man, we can get you a deal within a year, don't give up!'"

In mid-September of '06, just two weeks after going solo, B.o.B performed at Club Crucial, where TJ Chapman, founder of the national DJ conference TJ's DJ's, was in attendance. After hearing the rap rookie perform "Cloud 9," TJ was convinced he was in the presence of a star. "That was the first time I performed 'Cloud 9' and I got a standing ovation," says B.o.B "TJ Chapman was amazed. He linked up with B Rich, who let him hear my music, and TJ wanted to be involved in the team."

With the budding MC's demo in hand, TJ, B.o.B and B Rich flew to Miami to meet platinum producer Jim Jonsin. After one listen, Jonsin offered B.o.B a spot on his label. On October 3, 2006, B.o.B signed to Atlantic Records through Jonsin's Rebel Rock. "I'm really focused on painting a picture of myself as a musician and an artist and not just a rapper," says B.o.B "I feel like I'm not just making rap music; I feel like I'm changing music, period."

ALBUM FACTS

Genre: Rock Packaging Specs: Vinyl package features one 140g black vinyl disc in direct-to-board Stoughton jacket manufactured at Pallas with insert.

Description: Money and Cigarettes marked several important turning points in Eric Clapton's recording career: his debut release on his own Duck imprint; the first album he made after giving up drinking; and marked his working with new players (with the exception of second guitarist Albert Lee) including Stax Records veteran bassist Donald "Duck" Dunn and Muscle Shoals drummer Roger Hawkins, also bringing in guest guitarist Ry Cooder.

His new songs reflected on his changed condition, with "Ain't Going Down," a thinly veiled musical rewrite of the Jimi Hendrix arrangement of "All Along the Watchtower," serving as a statement of purpose that declared, "I've still got something left to say." Other notable hits include "The Shape You're In" the acoustic ballad "Pretty Girl" and covers of Sleepy John Estes' "Everybody Oughta Make a Change" (significantly placed as the album's leadoff track), Albert King's "Crosscut Saw," and Johnny Otis' "Crazy Country Hop."

ARTIST & INFO

By the time Eric Clapton launched his solo career with the release of his self-titled debut album in mid-1970, he was long established as one of the world's major rock stars due to his group affiliations -- the Yardbirds, John Mayall's Bluesbreakers, Cream, and Blind Faith -- which had demonstrated his claim to being the best rock guitarist of his generation.

Clapton has been inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame as a solo performer and as a member of the bands Yardbirds and Cream. He is the only person ever to be inducted three times. In his 40-year-plus career, Eric Clapton has received a total of 18 Grammys.

ALBUM FACTS

Genre: Rock Producers: JayJayce (Cage The Elephant/Patty Griffin) Radio Formats: Active Rock, Modern Rock
Focus Markets: Dallas, Austin, Nashville

Description:

We recorded it live,' Tyler says of the Pardon Me sessions in Nashville with producer Jay Joyce (known for his work with Cage The Elephant, John Hiatt, Patty Griffin, Audio Adrenaline, Crowded House). "We were really critical about keeping things in the pocket and giving it a groove, but letting the songs breathe and feel alive was the main thing that was really important to us. And because we'd played those songs so much before going into the studio, for the most part it wasn't that hard. We didn't really pull our hair out over any of the songs.'

It's clear from the finished results - be it storming rockers like "Young & Free' and "Gypsy Woman' or gut-wrenching, slow-burning beauties like "She Wears a Smile' and "Paint Me a Picture' - that the band expended just as much sweat and passion in the studio as they do night after night onstage.

ARTIST & INFO

Hometown: Dallas, TX Band Members: Jonathan Tyler, Brandon Pinckard, Nick Jay, Emotion Brown and Jordan Cain

Contrary to doomsayer rumor, rock music doesn't need saving. But a wake-up call is long overdue, and this is it. Actually, not just a wake-up call, but a joyous reunion of rock with its oft-forgotten prodigal twin, the roll - with papa blues and mama soul along for the ride, too. All of which makes Pardon Me the perfect introduction to one of the most electrifying young bands in America - or at least the next best thing to experiencing Jonathan Tyler and the Northern Lights live. Literally.

Don't be fooled by the good Southern manners implied by the title of Pardon Me, the major-label debut by Dallas' Jonathan Tyler and the Northern Lights. The walloping roundhouse punch of Pardon Me's lead-off title track and everything else packed into Tyler and Co.'s Texas-sized can of rock 'n' roll whoopass. "Hey!" Tyler shouts after the opening salvo of guitars lands like a gauntlet slap across the face. "Can you hear me? Can you feel me, coming through your stereo?" Then comes the coup-de-grace, a shot of Hendrix-laced adrenaline plunged deep into the listener's heart and soul by a diabolically persuasive Dr. Feelgood. "Maybe it's been too long since rock 'n' roll turned you on,' sneers Tyler, with equal measures of promise and threat. "So pardon me, just let it set you free.'

BUMPED

recital. Impressed, like many at the time, with Andres's execution of Charles Ives' difficult "Concord Sonata," Ross described Andres as "a formidable pianist" and praised his budding skills as a composer with a discernibly individual voice. In 2006, after a New York City concert, Boston Globe critic Richard Dyer wrote, "The performances were sensational; Andres had no trouble taking the audience along with him wherever he wanted to go. New music cannot be intimidating when played with this degree of skill and zest."

Like that concert, Andres's wryly-titled Nonesuch debut, Shy and Mighty, is immediately engaging. His work, by turns contemplative and playful, is presented in a pristine, unadorned setting that makes his prodigious artistry seem almost effortless, his performance an intimate exchange with each listener. With all of its 10 pieces arranged for two pianos, Shy and Mighty also features the pianist David Kaplan, a performer the New York Times has praised for his "striking imagination and creativity." Though each track stands firmly on its own, Andres perceives Shy and Mighty as an album-length work, a new-music piece wrapped in pop-album structure. (Though steeped in the classical canon, Andres has expressed his admiration for such artists as Brian Eno and, especially, the electronic duo Boards Of Canada.) His writing has an entrancingly pastoral quality, particularly on "How Can I Live In Your World Of Ideas?," but Andres often intersperses these stunningly beautiful pieces with what he likes to call "needle drops," short sonic surprises that provide an illuminating reference or musical quote that offers deeper insight into a composition or takes it in an intriguing new direction. "Out Of Shape" starts meditatively, then builds to a grand, downright breathtaking mid-section. Fans of label-mate Brad Mehldau's solo work will appreciate the quick-witted changes along with the deeply expressive playing.

Last spring John Adams showcased Andres in a young performers concert he curated for the Los Angeles Philharmonic. Andres, said Los Angeles Times critic Mark Swed, represented for Adams "the idea of the modern composer being open-minded and communicative, with the performer chops to pull everything off." Swed himself added, "What [Adams] didn't need to say is that being young, eager, inventive, stylistically omnivorous... makes pianist Timothy Andres all but irresistible to an audience."

In the package liner notes, Andres offers brief, humorous descriptions of each piece and discusses his working methods at length in a printed interview with Ronen Givony of New York City's Wordless Music series. As his words and music prove, Andres is a major talent for a new century. Shy - perhaps; mighty - indeed.

ARTIST & INFO

Timothy Andres (b. 1985, Palo Alto, CA) is a composer and pianist. He grew up in rural Connecticut and lives in New York City. His compositions meld a classical-music upbringing with diverse interests in the natural world, graphic arts, technology, cooking, and photography. He has been praised for his "acute ear" by the New York Times's Anthony Tommasini and "stubborn nose" by the New Yorker's Alex Ross. An avid pianist from an early age, Timothy (Timo for short) performs widely, focusing especially on music by his contemporaries. "New music cannot be intimidating when played with this degree of skill and zest," proclaimed Boston Globe critic Richard Dyer of a recent concert. Eleanor Hancock was his piano teacher for many years; later, he studied with Frederic Chiu, Boris Berman and Elisabeth Parisot. Recent commissions include a work for the ACME string quartet and New York Youth Symphony (Senior), an octet for members of New World Symphony (Some Connecticut Gospel), an orchestral elegy for the Yale Symphony (Bathtub Shrine), and a chamber orchestra work for the Los Angeles Philharmonic (Nightjar), which was conducted by John Adams in May 2009.

He also performed his solo piano piece How can I live in your world of ideas? on the Philharmonic's Green Umbrella series, which was pronounced "irresistible" by the LA Times's Mark Swed. Timo earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Yale, majoring in music and composition, respectively. As an undergraduate, he wrote music criticism for the Yale Daily News and ran IGI, a coalition of Yale-affiliated composers. He was a founding member of the Hindemith Ensemble, Yale's premiere chamber ensemble, and toured Germany with them as pianist and composer-in-residence. He has received awards from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, BMI, and ASCAP. Timo has spent summers at Tanglewood, Norfolk, Bowdoin, and Aspen music festivals. He first studied composition during high school, at Juilliard's Pre-College division (with Eric Ewazen) and has since worked with Martin Bresnick, Ingram Marshall, Aaron Jay Kernis, Chris Theofanidis, John Halle, Matthew Sutor, Kathryn Alexander, Michael Klingbeil, and Orianna Webb.

Description:

Bone Thugs-N-Harmony's blockbuster album, Uni5: The World's Enemy, is its first release in more than 15 years with all five members in tow. Though Uni5: The World's Enemy updates Bone's signature sound and style into a less abrasive, more reflective incarnation, the group's potency has only been heightened.

Although Flesh-N-Bone was arrested in the late 1990s and sentenced to more than a decade in prison, having all five group members working in unison on Uni5: The World's Enemy gave the collection more significance in a robust effort.

The unity of Bone Thugs-N-Harmony shines throughout Uni5: The World's Enemy. The piano-accented "Facts Don't Lie" features the group coming together to document its history and cement its status as the rap game's original thugs, while the melodic "Pay What They Owe" details how Bone changed the music world.

Long-time Bone fans know that one of the group's strengths is its ability to make credible inspirational music. The moody "My Life" and the bluesy "Determination" encourage fans to look for the positive in life and to not give up in the face of adversity.

Bone Thugs-N-Harmony reaches its creative apex on Uni5: The World's Enemy. It's an album that could have only been made by worldly, battle-tested, street-savvy men who have tasted success and disappointment, who have known triumph and failure.

ARTIST & INFO

Hometown: Atlanta

Toni Braxton has been at the forefront of modern R&B and soul since her 1991 debut single, "Love Shoulda Brought You Home" (featured in the film, Boomerang). Her self-titled debut, which followed in 1993, proved a true pop phenomenon, earning 8x-platinum certification from the RIAA for sales in excess of 8 million. The album also saw Braxton receiving her first round of Grammy Awards, including "Best New Artist" and two "Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female" trophies, honoring the singles, "Another Sad Love Song" and "Breathe Again."

"SECRETS" arrived in 1997 and indelibly confirmed Toni's status as a true international superstar. The 8x-platinum certified collection spawned a string of major hit singles, including the #1 hits, "You're Makin' Me High" and "Un-Break My Heart." The latter track became an instant pop classic, topping Billboard's "Hot 100" for 11 consecutive weeks, while also dominating a variety of other charts around the world. "Un-Break My Heart" and "You're Makin' Me High" earned Braxton two more Grammy Awards, for "Best Pop Vocal Performance, Female" and "Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female," respectively. Toni followed the stunning success of "SECRETS" by embarking on a further career as a stage actress. She drew rave reviews for her history-making turn as "Belle" in Disney's Beauty and the Beast - the first African-American woman to star in a Disney musical production.

Braxton's long-awaited third album, "THE HEAT," was released to worldwide acclaim in 2000. At year's end, Toni was named Billboard's "Top R&B/Hip-Hop Artist - Female," "Top R&B/Hip-Hop Album Artist - Female," "Top R&B/Hip-Hop Singles & Tracks Artist - Female," while the gold-certified, chart-topping smash, "He Wasn't Man Enough," brought home still another Grammy Award for "Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female."

In 2001, Toni made her big-screen debut in 2001's hit comedy, Kingdom Come, earning a BET Black Oscar for her performance. 2002's "MORE THAN A WOMAN" and 2005's "LIBRA" saw her continuing to expand her musical range of expression, while her 2006 collaboration with Il Divo, "The Time of Our Lives," was named the official anthem of the 2006 FIFA World Cup. That same year saw Toni making history once again, this time with Toni Braxton: Revealed, her blockbuster stage show at Las Vegas' Flamingo Hotel & Casino. Though initially slated for a brief three-month run, the show proved such a success that it was ultimately extended through mid-2008.

As if all that weren't enough, Braxton was also among the top competitors on the 2008 season of ABC's Dancing with the Stars. She followed the reality series' success by appearing in the "Dancing with the Stars - The Tour 2008/2009" roadshow, which played to sold-out arenas across the country.

ALBUM FACTS

Genre: Rock Producers: Nick Raskulinecz Radio Formats: Modern Rock, Active Rock, Mainstream Rock, Metal

Description: Diamond Eyes works the way good records used to; each song carries you a little further away from your crappy day until finally, you've been transported to a place that feels a whole lot better than where you started. There's also a newfound sense of purpose that makes Deftones' sixth album stand out. The band recorded the album after their best friend and bassist Chi Cheng sustained a debilitating brain injury from a car accident in November of 2008.

The tangle of Stephen Carpenter's woozy, undulating guitar work and Moreno's soaring then secretive vocal style is the bittersweet dynamic behind each of Deftones' records, including Diamond Eyes. The friction drives the music as much as it does the players, though it doesn't always make life easy for childhood friends Carpenter and Moreno. "What makes us work?" asks Carpenter. "Chino will give you the exact opposite answer that I do. That's the way it is with us-we contradict each other constantly but it's also what makes our music what it is-intense and different."

ARTIST & INFO

Hometown: Sacramento, CA Band Members: Chino Moreno - Vocals

Stephen Carpenter - Guitar

Sergio Vega - Bass

Frank Delgado - Keys & Samples

Abe Cunningham - Drums

Deftones have never been your average hard rock band. As kids, the Sacramento fivesome cut its teeth on Anthrax and The Smiths, Pantera and The Cure, skateboarding and "The Smurfs." As a band out of high school, Deftones mixed trip hop with thrash, melodic vocals with crushing reverb, and yes, pretty with ugly. As chart-toppers and headliners, they've crossed over genres, defied categorization and confused the hell out of your iPod ("Heavy Metal?" "Hard Rock?" "Alternative?") Above all, Deftones have stuck together throughout their often-turbulent tenure, and now, deliver one of the most compelling records of their career.

Critics, marketers and radio alike have struggled with just where to place or how to define Deftones. They band has, after all, played with punk rockers L7, toured with Metallica and appealed to some of the same fan base as Morrissey and generally defied simple, and ultimately pointless genre classification. "We're not a party band, but we're not a dark rock band," says Moreno. "We're not the most wildly artistic band, but we're not light and fluffy. It's hard to put us in one place. I don't blame people when they try to do it, because I can't even pin it myself. But really, does it matter?" Not when you're as compelling, diverse, powerful and pretty as Deftones.

Description: The world's most predictably unpredictable band, The Flaming Lips, have teamed up with their Oklahoma City brethren, Stardeath And White Dwarfs to record their own unique take of Pink Floyd's 1973 classic album The Dark Side Of The Moon, under the title of The Flaming Lips and Stardeath And White Dwarfs with Henry Rollins And Peaches.

The collaborative project was recorded after several weeks of both bands touring the world together and mutually citing Pink Floyd as one of their favorite bands of all time and The Dark Side Of the Moon as one of their primary influences.

ARTIST & INFO

Hometown: Norman, Oklahoma Band Members: Wayne Coyne, Steven Drozd, Michael Ivins, Kliph Scurlock, Dennis Coyne, Casey Joseph, Matt Duckworth, James Young

After lauded indie albums, The Flaming Lips debuted on Warner Bros. with 1991's Hit To Death In The Future Head. Transmissions From The Satellite Heart and Clouds Taste Metallic followed. 1999's TheSoft Bulletin topped numerous year-end best-of lists and helped rank the band among the most influential in the world. 2002's Yoshimi Battles The Pink Robots ranked #4 in Spin and #11 in NME on their end-of-year lists, and won a Grammy®. In 2007, the Flaming Lips were nominated for a Grammy for Best Alternative Album for At War With The Mystics and won a Grammy for Best Engineered Album, Non-Classical. In 2008, the band's long-awaited, seven-years-in-the-making film Christmas on Mars made its debut at that spring's Sasquatch Festival in George, WA; that fall, the movie and its soundtrack were released as a CD/DVD set. During 2007 and 2008, the Lips began working on the follow-up to At War with the Mystics, taking a spontaneous, more experimental approach than they had in several albums. The results were released as Embryonic in fall 2009.

ARTIST & INFO

Hometown: Atlanta

Toni Braxton has been at the forefront of modern R&B and soul since her 1991 debut single, "Love Shoulda Brought You Home" (featured in the film, Boomerang). Her self-titled debut, which followed in 1993, proved a true pop phenomenon, earning 8x-platinum certification from the RIAA for sales in excess of 8 million. The album also saw Braxton receiving her first round of Grammy Awards, including "Best New Artist" and two "Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female" trophies, honoring the singles, "Another Sad Love Song" and "Breathe Again."

"SECRETS" arrived in 1997 and indelibly confirmed Toni's status as a true international superstar. The 8x-platinum certified collection spawned a string of major hit singles, including the #1 hits, "You're Makin' Me High" and "Un-Break My Heart." The latter track became an instant pop classic, topping Billboard's "Hot 100" for 11 consecutive weeks, while also dominating a variety of other charts around the world. "Un-Break My Heart" and "You're Makin' Me High" earned Braxton two more Grammy Awards, for "Best Pop Vocal Performance, Female" and "Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female," respectively. Toni followed the stunning success of "SECRETS" by embarking on a further career as a stage actress. She drew rave reviews for her history-making turn as "Belle" in Disney's Beauty and the Beast - the first African-American woman to star in a Disney musical production.

Braxton's long-awaited third album, "THE HEAT," was released to worldwide acclaim in 2000. At year's end, Toni was named Billboard's "Top R&B/Hip-Hop Artist - Female," "Top R&B/Hip-Hop Album Artist - Female," "Top R&B/Hip-Hop Singles & Tracks Artist - Female," while the gold-certified, chart-topping smash, "He Wasn't Man Enough," brought home still another Grammy Award for "Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female."

In 2001, Toni made her big-screen debut in 2001's hit comedy, Kingdom Come, earning a BET Black Oscar for her performance. 2002's "MORE THAN A WOMAN" and 2005's "LIBRA" saw her continuing to expand her musical range of expression, while her 2006 collaboration with Il Divo, "The Time of Our Lives," was named the official anthem of the 2006 FIFA World Cup. That same year saw Toni making history once again, this time with Toni Braxton: Revealed, her blockbuster stage show at Las Vegas' Flamingo Hotel & Casino. Though initially slated for a brief three-month run, the show proved such a success that it was ultimately extended through mid-2008.

As if all that weren't enough, Braxton was also among the top competitors on the 2008 season of ABC's Dancing with the Stars. She followed the reality series' success by appearing in the "Dancing with the Stars - The Tour 2008/2009" roadshow, which played to sold-out arenas across the country.
