JEFF TWEEDY

LOVE IS THE KING / LIVE IS THE KING

STREET DATE: DECEMBER 10, 2021

Jeff Tweedy's deluxe edition of his acclaimed 2020 solo album Love Is The King will be released digitally and as a two-disc CD package on December 10, 2021.

Titled Love Is The King/Live Is The King this expanded package features the original album plus a bonus disc with live versions of all eleven songs played by Jeff with a full band. The live versions were recorded at The Loft (Wilco's studio) and Chicago's Constellation club in January 2021. The band features Jeff, sons Sammy and Spencer Tweedy, Liam Kazar, James Elkington and Sima Cunningham. The live set closes with a cover version of Neil Young's classic "The Old Time Waltz".

Love Is The King / Live Is The King was produced by Jeff and Tom Schick at Wilco's Chicago studio, The Loft.

"At the beginning of the lockdown I started writing country songs to console myself. Folk and country type forms being the shapes that come most easily to me in a comfort food sort of way. 'Guess Again' is a good example of the success I was having at pushing the world away, counting my blessings – taking stock in my good fortune to have love in my life. Just a few weeks later things began to sound like 'Love Is The King' – a little more frayed around the edges with a lot more fear creeping in. Still hopeful but definitely discovering the limits of my own ability to self soothe." - Jeff Tweedy

One of the top 50 albums of 2020

"Full of delicate folk mopers, lighthearted country romps, and genuinely sweet love songs, as well as his best guitar playing in years." - Rolling Stone

This album marries Tweedy's mature emotional outlook to the workaday manners of Uncle Tupelo or the Woody Guthrie project, Mermaid Avenue." - Uncut

About dBpm Records:

The Shivas

Feels So Good // Feels So Bad

12" Vinyl + CD + Digital

DESCRIPTION

Every working musician has had their life turned upside down by Covid-19. For The Shivas, who had recently released a new LP and normally keep a rigorous touring schedule, it was a particularly screeching halt. "We were about to go to SXSW, the following weekend was Treefort in Boise, and then we were going to open for our friends' band on tour in the US before going to Europe," Jared Molyneux remembers. Then everything just stopped.

They were faced with a dilemma. "It forced us to adapt or just quit," Molyneux says. "The reality is that shows are our job."

In truth, live shows aren't just The Shivas job: they are the band's greatest love. Shivas shows are bombastic, explosive and thoroughly communal live rock and roll experiences where barriers between the performers and their audience seem to dissolve into the sweat and sound. The stage—or the basement, or the living room—that's The Shivas' true element. It's their raison d'être. It's their religion.

The band's live urgency may have been born in 2006, when the band's young members—who began booking West Coast tours while still in high school—waited without fanfare on sidewalks or in parking lots, before being rushed onstage for their sets at 21-and-up clubs. Maybe it developed a little later, as The Shivas blasted their way through Portland's storied and unsanctioned mid-aughts house show scene. Whatever the origin of their famously kinetic live experience, it's the show that keeps them coming back after over 1,000 performances spread over 25 countries in 15 years.

The album that emerged from this new moment finds The Shivas reborn as a band that seems seasoned and perfectly at home with itself. There is a calm, even a hopefulness, to Feels So Good / Feels So Bad that sounds new. The Shivas didn't write or record the album with a particular theme in mind, but one seems to have emerged: where Dark Thoughts was about confronting your demons with fearless self-examination, much of Feels So Good / Feels So Bad is about what happens once you find that peace: how being honest with yourself changes your relationships and your priorities. "I do think it's about acceptance," Leonard says. "There's a weird relaxation that comes with being at peace with things you can't control or have regrets about."

Whatever growth led the band to Feels So Good / Feels So Bad, plenty of their fascinations remain. They're still turning love songs into psychedelic, transcendent epics. "Tell Me That You Love Me" subverts doo-wop extravagance and dabbles in Flamenco rhythms. "Rock Me Baby" is a bubblegum anthem soaked in so much reverb that we might just be hearing it from the stadium nosebleeds. "Sometimes" is almost impossibly huge, like a witchy outtake from the Brill Building era.

Those songs feel like logical expansions from a band that has always excelled at a timeless sort of rock and roll that tinkers with and explodes elements from every era. But on the towering and mournful "You Wanna Be My Man," a slow-burning six-minute shoegaze prayer for a higher sort of love, there is a level of emotional nuance that feels like something altogether revolutionary. It's there again in the stripped-down vulnerability of the album-closing elegy "Please Don't Go."

Yes, Feels So Good / Feels So Bad is an album about acceptance. Sometimes that acceptance feels enlightened and sometimes it feels like the end result of a lot of kicking and screaming. The Shivas have adapted in both of those ways. With new tours scheduled and a new album on the way, they're still hoping—like all of us—for a new era of vibrant, cathartic live music. The lessons they learned from having their normal upended, though, have only helped them grow.

General Information

Bio

Paul Gilbert and The Players Club / Mascot Label Group are set to release a new holiday album entitled 'Twas. This is Gilbert's 17th solo album and features a collection of holiday classics plus two new original songs. This album is available November 26th on CD and digital, with a limited edition LP to follow on December 10th.

Gilbert formed a band of Portland, Oregon's finest jazz and blues musicians for this album. The players are Dan Balmer (guitar), Clay Giberson (keyboards), Timmer Blakely (bass), and Jimi Bott (drums). The album was recorded in Jimi Bott's studio, who also engineered and mixed the recordings. The approach was to record two songs every day, for six days, delivering the collected body of work.

"Ten of the songs are covers of classics, the others are new songs I wrote," explains Gilbert. "I was inspired by the Christmas recordings of Nat King Cole, Loretta Lynn, Stevie Wonder, Barbra Streisand, Johnny Mathis, Ella Fitzgerald, and The Ventures. And of course, inspiration came from my guitar heroes, Eddie Van Halen, Alex Lifeson, Johnny Winter, Robin Trower, Frank Marino, Jimi Hendrix, and Jimmy Page, to name a few.

"In recent times, challenging events have been pouring down upon our heads," adds Gilbert. "While I was jamming Christmas songs with my friends, I felt like life was THE BEST. I hope that this music can put smiles back on people's faces."

Tiffany

PIECES OF ME (DELUXE EDITION)

For fans of Tiffany, 80's Music and Pop!

Legendary pop star and 80's icon, Tiffany, is best known for the #1 Billboard hit, “I Think We're Alone Now”, which recently garnered a whopping 100 million streams on Spotify. At the start of her career, Tiffany earned two U.S. #1 hit singles with the aforementioned “I Think We're Alone Now”, as well as the ballad, “Could've Been,” and also set a record as the youngest female artist to top the Billboard charts with her debut album “Tiffany”. Over the course of her three-decade career, Tiffany has sold over 15 million records.

Tiffany isn't afraid to take risks. 2019's Pieces of Me was a step away from what her fans might expect, but one that won't disappoint. Fusing elements of rock and pop, the album shines a spotlight on Tiffany's vocals, songwriting and producing skills, while still showcasing her trademark tendency for big radio friendly choruses.

After two massively successful albums and world tours, at age 21 her priorities shifted. She gave birth to her son Elijah and wanted to raise him out of the spotlight, but she never stopped writing music. Pieces of Me was recorded across numerous locations, including Nashville, LA and London and brought Tiffany together with an array of hugely talented and experienced musicians for what she calls "the most organic musical experience of her career."

This “Deluxe Edition” includes unplugged versions of “King of Lies”, “Starting Over”, and “Worlds Away”. Re-Mastered and Re-packaged with new photos. This is a must have for Tiffany fans!

BIO

When it comes to defining the space between classical and electronic music, hardly any other name is mentioned as often as that of the Berlin-based pianist, composer and producer Nils Frahm. His unconventional approach to an age-old instrument, played contemplatively and intimately, and on a mesmerizing scale through his vast stage shows, has won him many fans around the world. Continuing his annual celebration of Piano Day, Frahm shared the previously unreleased nine-track piano album Graz in March 2021. His latest single Desert Mule as well as the seven-track album 2X1=4, which released September 3rd on LEITER, finds him unexpectedly exploring a dub-influenced universe with his long-time collaborator F.S. Blumm.

ABOUT AARON WATSON: Aaron Watson's career is perhaps summed up best by Forbes, who says he's "one of country music's biggest DIY success stories." For over 20 years, Watson has achieved success on his own terms, hand-building a lauded career through songwriting, relentless touring and 20 self-released albums. His independent Texas spirit and strong work ethic are emblematic of the western lifestyle; virtues which have taken him from humble honky-tonks of Texas to multiple sold-out tours around the world. Watson is exceeding major-label-sized metrics while maintaining his independence, further galvanizing his "Texas country's reigning indie underdog" (Rolling Stone) brand. "There may be no more genuine singer-songwriter at the moment than Watson," says Texas Monthly, pointing to a self-made businessman, chart-topper, and road warrior whose authenticity has made him a country music staple.

ANITA LANE

Sex O'Clock

Street Date: 12/17/21

Mute planned to release Sex O'Clock for the first time on vinyl as a 20th Anniversary edition before Anita's untimely passing earlier this year. Initially released in 2001, this classic album was produced by Mick Harvey and features co-writes from various Bad Seeds, including a unique interpretation of Gil Scott Heron's searing "Home Is Where the Hatred Is."

Known for being one of the most creative forces to come out of Melbourne's post-rock scene, Anita came to London in 1980 with The Birthday Party. Credited as a co-founder of Nick Cave's Bad Seeds, Lane exerted a strong influence over the band and co-wrote the universally acclaimed "From Her To Eternity" and the haunting "Stranger Than Kindness." Whilst also collaborating with the likes of Barry Adamson, Einstürzende Neubauten, Die Haut and Mick Harvey on his celebrated Serge Gainsbourg albums. First time on vinyl with lyric inner sleeve, also available on CD with lyric booklet.
